FOOD VENDOR RISK TYPE DESCRIPTIONS

Is my temporary food establishment a Risk Type 1, 2, 3 or ? What is the difference between each risk type?

Food establishments are classified into four (4) risk types by:

- Kind of food served
- Menu size
- Type of food preparation

Dependent upon the information provided in your temporary vendor application and/or the inspections at your facility, the Health Inspector will determine the facility risk type using the following definitions:

Risk 1

- Does not cool potentially hazardous foods
- Prepares only non-potentially hazardous foods or heats only commercially processed, potentially hazardous foods for hot holding
- Serves only pre-packaged, non-potentially hazardous foods

Ex: prepackaged foods or goods ie store bought baked goods

Risk 2

- Has hot and cold holding of potentially hazardous foods after preparation or cooking or limits complex preparation of potentially hazardous foods, including the cooking, cooling and reheating for hot holding to 2 or fewer items
- Prepares, cooks and serves most products immediately.
- Limited menu and does not cool more than two (2) potentially hazardous foods.
- May include, but is not limited to the following examples:

Ex: pizza, sandwiches, simple fast food without cooling, quick service operations, simple grocery stores or convenience stores without cooling.

Risk 3

- Has a large menu that requires the complex preparation of menu items, including cooking, cooling and reheating of at least 3 or more potentially hazardous foods or prepares and serves potentially hazardous foods, including raw ingredients
- Serves a susceptible population
- May include, but is not limited to following examples:

Ex: full service restaurants, diners, bakeries, delis, commissaries, catering operations, nursing homes, hospitals, schools, etc.

Risk 4

- A retail food establishment that conducts specialized processes designed to control pathogen proliferation, including, but not limited to:
 - Acidification or Smoking
 - Bottling
 - Canning
 - Curing
 - Reduced oxygen packaging for an extended shelf life
